DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 3 and 6 objected to because of the following informalities: In Claim 3, the words “step” in line 16 and “at” in line 17 appear to be in different lines. In Claim 6, QSAR should be spelled out or otherwise defined, if it is a well known in the art software. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The method for generating a mottling value does not produce any tangible results. The practical application of the claimed invention cannot be realized until the information is conveyed to the user. For the results to be tangible, it would need to output to a user, displayed to a user, stored for later use, or used in any tangible manner. Merely determining, selecting, calculating, evaluating, or generating a calculation formula would not appear to be sufficient to constitute a tangible result, since the outcome of the method has not been used in a disclosed practical application nor made available in such a manner that its usefulness in a disclosed practical application can be realized.

Part b. Practical Application the Produces a Useful, Concrete, and Tangible Result under Section IV Determine Whether the Claimed Invention Complies with the Subject Matter Eligibility Requirement of 35 U.S.C. Sec. 101, sentence 3, in the OG Notice from 22 November 2005 states, “In determining whether the claim is for a “practical application,” the focus is not on whether the steps taken to achieve a particular result are useful, tangible, and concrete, but rather that the final result achieved by the claimed invention is “useful, tangible, and concrete.”

See OG Notices: 22 November 2005, "Interim Guidelines for Examination of Patent Applications for Patent Subject Matter Eligibility". MPEP 2106.
